abunDANCE in the Early Years family directed learning is precious

This unifiedknowledge Practice is suited to parents from pre birth through to those with young children aged up to years We are open and valued by families of diverse cultural and religious heritage as unifiedknowledge touches classic traditional values that naturally form a common ground for the local community

Tuition is facilitated directly by stehmari atekun and or senior ssociate embers raduates using the unifiedknowledge yeht'mr urwuk'eht approach to education we will help children and families establish natural approaches to learning that truly strengthen nes baseline for self development from a nature centred place and way of being

The principles of our approach come from a long heritage and once re explored touch that place of intuitive common sense and conscience that drives parents to secure the very best for their children s unique characters ack in the day our way of building educational foundation would be considered a "Liberal Arts" schooling that is to say education for leaders and creators free minded living beings

Today it is "cultural arts studies" and for us unifiedknowledge Practice practically means Maths-Science-Arts-Nature taught with one unified approach yeht'mr urwuk'eht Using the highest principles processes and protocols we are interested in bring out the best characters from children families and community drawing on each nes naturally brilliant heritage This pioneering family centred approach to daytime education is for those committed to facilitating the best learning experiences for the young nes in their care

nrolment

nrolment for this special small group tuition is done in rolling terms of week cycles three months The format is similar to a stay and play or playgroup programme with greater emphasis on cultural intelligence and the state of the art science unity of unifiedknowledge

Venues

bundance entre roject rixton oughborough ark nside the rixton ondon SW U

Time

Tuesdays ridays am to pm

ee

x R introductory sessions now £ per weeks term per parent child lexible arrangements for larger families

rerequisite

There are no prerequisites to joiin this course arents are however invited to attend our school s rolling induction course

Educating with unifiedknowledge: Foundation Course One

Visit our website for more info on this course unifiedknowledge org dwennimmazn represents strength (mind, breath & body), humility, wisdom and learning.

proverb: "The ram may be firm, not with its horn but with its heart"

The symbol above is an dinkra sign called $dwennimma \epsilon n$ djwin knee mann wennimmagn is derived from the geometric shape of a ram s horns

ጅዌኒምመን

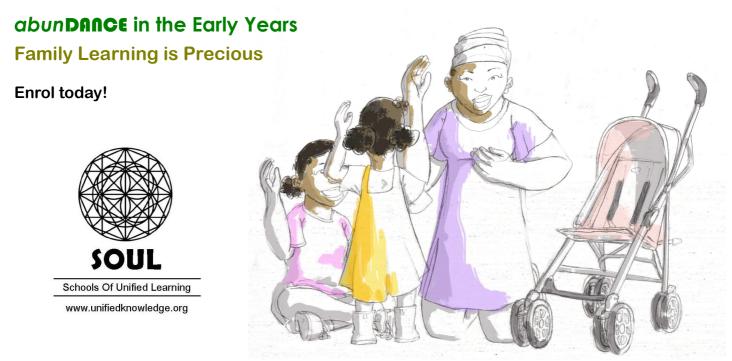

dwennimmasn

The Akan (like many cultures panAfrica) see the ram as a very strong animal with graceful and magnificent horns. It uses its horns for protection and survival. Even though its horns could be used forcefully for survival in the animal world this creature typically chooses not to use them as such, instead tending to be graceful and elegant in manner, especially to its family). In other words the ram utilises its heart before its horn for its true strength.

Thus the strength of a ram depends not so much on the forcefulness of its horns but on the integrity of its heart. The horns of a ram are a symbol of strength, but to the Akan the horns symbolise the idea that One who desires peace must possess the strength of the ram when challenged. This concept of the Akan comes from the belief that peace itself is engendered by a preparedness for challenge. Further it calls on Ones to build physical and strategic strength on the surface, governed internally by the heart, which in ancient culture is the icon of conscience and consciousness.

A person may be talented and gifted and may have skills and knowledge, but it is not these alone that enable One to excel. It is the light heart creative use of these skills with the strength of mind - breath - body harmony and the humility that comes from observing One's relationship to others and the whole (universe). Further, it is the learning and wisdom that come with experience that enables a person (adult or child) to exceed "normal" capabilities and excel in One's endeavours and objectives. The adinkra symbol dwennimma ε n speaks of these concepts and principles.

At Schools Of Unified Learning we find it to be a good symbol to represent our early years service.

tel: 020 8144 1720 075 3003 8547 learning@unifiedknowledge.org